SINISTER NOTE IN STREET AS PRINCE WEDS

Fascists Use All Precaution
During Beautiful Wedding
In Palace

By GUGLITMO EMANUEL

ROME, Jan. 8 — In a magnificent ceremony which carried this twentieth century city back to the federal splendor of the middle ages, Crown Prince Umberto, the future King of Italy, took his childhood sweetheart for his bride today.

A galaxy of royalty, including kings, queens, princes and princesses from every reigning house of Europe, were present when the heir to the Italian throne was wedded to Princess Marie Jose, beautiful daughter of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium.

But while the Princess was being married to the heir to the Italian throne within the palace, there was a sinister note in the streets outside, as heavily armed Fascist guards and plain clothes policemen kept a constant watch to see that no anarchistic attempt was made.

The discovery of a number of plots directed against the princess and members of her family, caused the Italian authorities to take extraordinary precautions to prevent any untoward incident. All suspected characters had been rounded up, and all recent visitors from outlying provinces had been thoroughly searched and their identities and reputations checked in order to forestall any attempts at a bombing plot.

ROYALTY THERE

With very few exceptions, the page was witnessed only by members of royal blood. For the ceremony which links two of the oldest reigning dynasties of Europe took place in the tiny Pauline Chapel of the Quirinal Palace, residence of the Italian Royal family.

Approximately 100 persons, almost every one bearing regal titles, sat in crimson-draped pews in the historic chapel during the ceremony, while in the reception rooms of the palace, adjoining thousands of invited guests, including high state and ecclesiastical officials and diplomats, waited to greet the newly-wedded couple.

The marriage was performed by Cardinal Maffei, archbishop of Pisa, whom all Italy remembers as having pronounced a Te Deum in the Cathedral of Pisa when the Armistice was proclaimed. At that time he lauded the virtues of Italy's "Soldier King," an unusual tribute from a church dignitary at a time when the Vatican and the Italian state were still at seemingly hopeless odds.

While the closest members of their respective families knelt before the altar, the royal bride and groom stood while Cardinal Maffei pronounced the words that made the charming Belgian Princess an Italian consort and, in the natural course of events, the next queen of the Italian kingdom.

In accordance with the ancient custom, the Princess of the Italian house of Savoy flanked the bride and groom, holding over their heads an exquisite veil of white and gold lace. It was the same which had been used when King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was married to Princess Helena of Montenegro on Oct. 24, 1896.

GOWN MASTERPIECE

Princess Marie Jose's bridal gown was a masterpiece of the couturier's art. It was fashioned of cream-white velvet, woven especially for this purpose by skilled weavers of Como, Italy, and was trimmed with antique Brussels lace.

The gown carried a 23 foot train, embroidered with ermine and lined with white and silver moire. Although the Princess is known to be a devotee of the short skirt for informal wear, she bowed to ancient royal tradition on this occasion, and the lace-trimmed skirt of her gown dropped to her ankles.

The Prince was dressed in military uniform. Towering in height over his consort and the other members of his family, the Prince of Piedmont presented an impressive spectacle as he stood before the gorgeously decorated altar and promised to "love, honor and cherish" the Princess who will someday be a queen.

CURTISS MEN GIVE TALKS

Sam Sharp, Formerly of Kingston, and J. B. Medaris Attend Local Meeting

Sam Sharp, advanced flight instructor, and J. B. Medaris, traffic manager of the Curtiss-Wright Flying service, delivered short talks at the monthly meeting Monday of the Circleville Chapter of the National Aeronautical association.

Mr. Medaris talked on the subject of aviation as an industry. He stressed the fact that aviation of today is being built on a sound business basis and will develop into one of the greatest enterprises the world has ever known. He also stated that the children of today should be aided in their desires to become acquainted with the principles of aviation as they will find aviation a part of their daily life within a few years.

Mr. Sharp explained the operation of aircraft. He explained the principle of glider flight, air currents and their effect on the flight of aircraft and that various maneuvers and stunts that can be executed by the heavier than air craft.

WELL KNOWN HERE

Mr. Sharp is well known in Circleville, having been born near Kingston where he lived until he entered aviation in 1912. He is a member of the pioneer flying organization, The Early Birds, and has held commissions with both the United States and the Mexican Air Corps.

D. D. Dowden, president of the Club, appointed William Gardner, Morris Boggs and Mack Parrett, Jr., to act as an investigating committee to check up on all planes which land in this community. The association deemed this advisable in order to protect the public from riding in ships that are not airworthy and with unlicensed pilots.

Tom A. Renick, chairman of the air marking committee, reported that the city council had appropriated $25 to be used in marking Circleville.

BOY DIES IN BUS WRECK

School Bus With Only Three Passengers Goes Into Path
Of Train

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 8 — A four-year-old boy is dead today and two other persons are recovering from injuries as a result of a bus-train accident yesterday afternoon when a switch engine struck a school bus at Newton, near here.

Only three persons were in the bus at the time of the crash. It was enroute to the Terrace Park High school where it was to have been boarded by school officials.

Had the bus been filled with students, the recent tragedy at Shreve, where seven boys were killed and nine others injured, would probably have been reenacted, it was claimed.

Hugh Bainum, four, a son of the driver, Allen Bainum, was caught beneath the wreckage and crushed to death. Imogene Beinam, 19, a daughter of the driver, was badly bruised about the legs. The driver was also bruised.

HOUSE DRIES PREPARE FOR BITTER FIGHT

Try to Preserve Morale of
Forces; Wets to Fight
Shot Gun Enforcement

By WILLIAM S. NEAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 — The prohibition maelstrom which has engulfed the House to bitter debate, while the Senate is busy on the tariff, today centered around plans of the "wets" to curb "shot gun enforcement" and a counter-attack by the "drys" to preserve the morale of the federal dry forces by defending their methods of law enforcement.

The "wet" campaign to curb the use of firearms will be officially launched Thursday afternoon at a meeting of the unofficial committee for modification of the prohibition law, headed by Rep. Lint-high (D), of Maryland.

Militant dries meantime planned to plunge the House into debate again with a defense of the coast guard, customs officers and prohibition enforcement officers generally against charges of "murder" when killings occur in making arrests.

Some house "drys," however, are much alarmed over the public resentment displayed in localities where shootings have occurred. The entire controversy has risen to a new high pitch as a result of the slaying of three men on the "Black Duck" a rum running boat, in Long Island Sound, and the shooting of James Downey at Buffalo.

Rep. Charles L. Gifford (R) of Massachusetts, who has supported all enforcement legislation, expressed the attitude of "drys" who are worried over the killings in the enforcement of the law.

"The people along the New England coast are now bracing face to face with what indiscriminate measures to enforce this law may bring about," he said. "They are staggered by the killing of young men, many of whom have been enticed into the liquor business. These killings certainly do the prohibition cause no good, and I think they have turned many people against it."

"I fear perhaps we are going too far in our enthusiasm to enforce the law when we permit killings except on extreme provocation. I have always been a staunch advocate of the coast guard and have been anxious to back it in all its activities. But I don't applaud a massacre."

Rep. Mead (D) of New York, a "wet," announced he will go before the "wet bloc" with a proposal that concerted action be taken "to stop this shooting without provocation."

"I can truthfully say that Buffalo and adjoining towns are thoroughly aroused and alarmed over the shooting of James Downey by coast guardsmen, when he was not threatening them but merely trying to run away," said Mead.

"He is the third man killed along the Niagara frontier in the last year and a half. Editorial writers of newspapers, both 'wet' and 'dry' have condemned these quick trigger men."

The "drys" are not entirely in agreement on the question. All express regret that killings are necessary. Some offer a blanket offense, and declare Congress must back enforcement officers to the limit. Others want to take measures to prevent them.

Rep. Hudson (R) of Michigan, a leading dry, had advocated the creation of a border patrol, uniforming of the men and a six-months' course of training before they go into service, as a means of insuring that officers will shoot only when necessary.

Many "drys" are expected to follow the lead of Rep. Reilly (R) of Maine, who told the House that Congress must back the enforcement men to the limit if they are to do good work.

MAY RENAMED B. OF E. HEAD

Charles H. May was re-elected president of the city board of education at the annual election Monday evening. Robert G. Colville was named vice-president and J. R. Noecker, clerk.

Lawrence Goeller was sworn in to succeed Judge E. A. Brown as a member of the board.

RAILROAD TO PAY EXPENSES

Pennsylvania Will Pay Medical
And Burial Costs Of
Shreve Disaster

WOOSTER, O., Jan. 8 — The Pennsylvania railroad today announced that it would defray all of the expenses of the killed and injured in the tragic bus-train crash at Shreve, last Friday night.

A Pennsylvania flyer hit a Bur-bank school bus and seven young boys were killed and nine other persons injured.

Because several families of the victims of the bus crash have little financial resources, C. A. Gibbens, county school superintendent, appealed to the Pennsylvania railroad for assistance.

Gibbens today received the following message:

"Although denying the responsibility for the unfortunate accident, the Pennsylvania railroad company, in a humanitarian spirit has informed the interested parties that it will assume the medical, hospital and funeral expenses."

HOLD SERIES OF MEETINGS

Farm Agent and O. S. U. Man
Conduct Alfalfa Schools
Throughout County

Stanley Lewis, county farm agent and J. A. Slipper, head of the soil and crop department of the Ohio State University, started a series of alfalfa meetings Wednesday with the first in Monroe-twp at the Five Points M. E. Church.

This afternoon the men conducted another meeting at the Farmers' Institute at Commercial Point.

Thursday morning the meeting will be held at the Walnut-twp high school and Thursday afternoon the meeting will be conducted at the Mt. Pleasant church for Wayne and Deer Creek townships.

Places for other meetings will be announced later.

Chillicothe Legion, To Help Organize

Lewis Laeger of Chillicothe, drum major and director of the Chillicothe American Legion Drum Corps, will be in Circleville Wednesday evening to help organize a drum corps in Howard Hall Post 101.

Laeger is also vice commander of the seventh district of O. P. S.

He has offered his services free of charge to help and to train a drum corps in this city.

All members of the American Legion and any ex-service men interested in the drum and bugle corps are urged to be present at the meeting tonight at 8 p. m. in the Post Room of the Memorial Hall. Lunch will be served.

CHURCHES ARRANGING TO SEE CHRISTIAN UNITY PAGEANT

"The Church Triumphant" has just been announced as the title of the pageant on "Christian Unity" to be produced in Columbus by the Ohio Council of Churches four nights during the Centennial Pentecostal Celebration, the week of Jan. 19-26, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Depicting in a series of dramatic, colorful episodes the workings of the spirit of unity among Christians down through the centuries to the present day, the pageant promises to be one of the chief factors to attract thousands of church workers of many denominations to Columbus for the Centennial Celebration, arranged in observance of the year 1930, as the 1900th anniversary of the church.

Parties of local church people are arranging through their pastors and the following committee to see the pageant: E. S. Neuding, chairman; H. W. Plum, C. O. Leist and W. H. Marion.

Those desiring to join these parties please get in touch with any of the above.

The opening episode, "The Day of Pentecost," presents a picturesque street scene in Jerusalem, suddenly charged with spiritual power as the hands of disciples emerge from their Upper Room and mingle with the crowd.

MANY GROUPS

The next scene is in the Catacombs, as a squad of Roman soldiers raid the group of worshippers, unafraid by their persecution, and drag them off to martyrdom.

Imperial pomp and pageantry characterize the third episode, "The Dedication of Constantinople," in which the fertility of Constantine's effort to impose unity by force is evident.

The Fifth Crusade offers the setting for the next episode, with St. Francis of Assisi as the central figure.

In an interlude separating these four historical episodes from two laid in the present day, great leaders of the past pass in review across "the pathway of history."

In the Twentieth Century episodes, a rural picnic scene first appears, rising in dramatic intensity as a storm wrecks the village and brings the people together in mutual helpfulness, free from petty bickerings, to meet the common emergency. Next in a great summer conference of young people, colorful tableaux present some of the social challenges of today for church leadership in building understanding among nations, races and other groups.

In a brilliant finale many demonstrations contribute their lights to a great outburst of the Pentecostal Flame, which sweeps out to illumine all the peoples of the world, marching triumphantly costumed, bearing the torch of peace, flags, as the church of the future.

NEW MANAGER AT MYKRANTZ STORE

Harold Taylor, of Canton, O., has been made the manager of the local Mykrantz store and has entered upon his new duties. Mr. Taylor replaces Claude Huston, who has been temporarily since Harold Gladell was transferred to Columbus. Mr. Taylor has been connected with the Roth and Rexall stores in Canton for a number of years and will move his family here as soon as possible.

Twelve hundred persons from Columbus churches compose the cast of the pageant. Ruth Mougey Worrell is director.

ELECT EAKINS DERBY LEADER

Derby-twp Has Successful
Farm Institute—Stanley
Lewis Gives Talk

Everett Eakins was elected president of the Derby-twp Farmers' institute at the meeting held Monday and Tuesday at the township school.

Mrs. Harry Vincent was elected lady correspondent and Jessie Stump was named treasurer.

The attendance at the two day session was fairly large considering the rain of Tuesday. Application was made for an institute next year.

Stanley Lewis, county farm agent, delivered a fine address at the Tuesday session on "Cooperative Farming."

Other speakers at the institute were O. A. Dobbins, master farmer and Mrs. Walter Pierce.

JURY IGNORES THEATRE MEN

Lancaster Men Will Continue To Operate Sunday Picture Houses

LANCASTER, O., Jan. 8.—The four theater managers, who were arrested here for operating their moving picture shows on a Sunday, had been freed today following the action of the Fairfield-co grand jury in ignoring their cases.

Those liberated were Harry Abrahams, O. L. Taylor, Charles Griggs and Herbert Ameller.

PLAIN TALKS AT C. C. MEETING

Irving O. Plain, of Elyria, O., promoter of the American Legion home talent production, "Yoo Hoo," gave an interesting talk to the Chamber of Commerce at the weekly meeting Tuesday and explained the work demanded in putting over a home talent show.

Mr. Plain in a very interesting way told of all the trouble and the trials which must be gone through in making such a show a success.

RETURNED HOME

Harriet Walters daughter of County Commissioner and Mrs. John E. Walters, who is convalescing from a recent operation at White Cross hospital, Columbus, was returned to her home near here Tuesday.

ELEVEN CASES IGNORED IN 3 DAY SESSION

Columbus Youths Who Stole
Sheep Among Those Sent
Up—Five Secret

The Pickaway-co January grand jury, after a session of two days and part of a third, returned 17 indictments, five of them secret and ignored 11 cases in common pleas court Wednesday. John Drumm, Circleville barber, was foreman of the jury.

None of the cases before the grand jury carried particular significance.

Those against whom true bills were returned were:

Paul Nicewander, petit larceny. George Glenn, non-support. William Amos, alias Bill Seymour, William Gaines and Homer Jacobs, grand and petit larceny.

Morris Cutler, non-support. Sam Brooks, third offense of the liquor laws.

Ralph Lutz, forgery. Thomas Longberry and Homer Queen, grand larceny.

Gilbert Brown, selling intoxicating liquor to a minor. Rufus Bailey, forgery.

Francis Danner assault and battery.

Among the cases ignored were those against Lillian Williams and Clarence Johnson, carrying concealed weapons; Hassel Davis, who was arrested with Paul Nicewander, indicted for petit larceny; James Johnson, burglary and larceny; Fred Levering, making threats; Dewey Amstrong, removing mortgaged property; Howard Keith and Harry H. Perry, failing to stop after an accident. Nicewander is alleged to have broken into a cash register.

Homer Jacobs and William Gaines were arrested in Chillicothe last week for stealing sheep from John Little and John Koch, Pickaway-co farmers. William Amos was arrested in Lancaster on the same charge several days later and was bound over by Squire E. C. Fricke.

BROOKS INDICTED

Sam Brooks, Five Points, was arrested following a boast that he could go into the court house carrying liquor and not be arrested. He was searched, however, and was found to possess liquor. He had been up two times before for violating liquor laws.

Francis Danner was indicted for assault and battery on a charge filed against him by E. F. Anderson, prominent county farmer, after Danner was alleged to have tried to kill him and Mrs. Anderson who was forced to be a patient in a Columbus hospital for several weeks after an alleged fight at the Anderson home. The original charge against Danner was assault with intent to kill which was reduced to assault and battery.

Judge J. W. Adkins announced Wednesday that arraignment of the prisoners that are now in the jail will be held either Friday or Saturday.

The grand jury investigated the county jail and after spending slightly more than an hour there returned the following report:

"We recommend removing bricks and debris near the jail; the erection of a fence surrounding the jail in order to prevent destruction of wire screen protecting the barred windows; the repair of the roof and water gutters; the removal of old, unused toilets on account of sanitary conditions and the installation of doubled-decked cots in the cells on the first and second floors."

The grand jury was composed of John Drumm, foreman; Mrs. Lincoln Kirk, Albert Tarbill, Mrs. C. K. Hussicker, Turney Woolver, Charles Hay, Mrs. Arthur Dunlap, Ben Courtwright, Mrs. J. T. Davis, Cliff Miller, Mrs. Guy Heffner, H. O. Eveland, E. H. Rausenberger, Harry W. Moore and George P. Bach.

NAME STOUTSVILLE FARM BUREAU HEAD

Harley Pearce was elected president of the Stoutsville Farm Bureau at their annual election Monday evening. Arthur Valentine was named vice president; Clark Lovett, secretary and Nelson Valentine, treasurer.

Plans for a Farmer's Institute Jan. 27 and 28 were discussed.

GRAND JURY RETURNS 17 INDICTMENTS

SINISTER NOTE IN STREET AS PRINCE WEDS

Fascists Use All Precaution
During Beautiful Wedding
In Palace

By GUGLITLMO EMANUEL
ROME, Jan. 8 — In a magnificent ceremony which carried this twentieth century city back to the federal splendor of the middle ages, Crown Prince Umberto, the future King of Italy, took his childhood sweetheart for his today.

A galaxy of royalty, including kings, queens, princes and princesses from every reigning house of Europe, were present when the heir to the Italian throne was wedded to Princess Marie Jose, beautiful daughter of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium.

But while the Princess was being married to the heir to the Italian throne within the palace, there was a sinister note in the streets outside, as heavily armed Fascist guards and plain clothes police kept a constant watch to see that no anarchistic attempt was made.

The discovery of a number of plots directed against the princess and members of her family, caused the Italian authorities to take extraordinary precautions to prevent any untoward incident. All suspected characters had been roundup, and all recent visitors from outlying provinces had been thoroughly searched and their identities and reputations checked in order to forestall any attempts at a bombing plot.

ROYALTY THERE
With very few exceptions, the marriage was witnessed only by ceremony which thus links two of the oldest sovereign dynasties of Europe took place in the tiny

Pauline Chapel of the Quirinal
Palace, residence of the Italian Royal family.

Approximately 100 persons, almost every one bearing regal titles, sat in crimson-draped pews in the historic chapel during the ceremony, while in the reception rooms of the palace adjoining, thousands of invited guests, including high state and ecclesiastical officials and diplomats, waited to greet the newly-wedded couple.

The marriage was performed by Cardinal Maffi, archbishop of Pisa, whom all Italy remembers as having pronounced a Te Deum in the Cathedral of Pisa when the Armistice was proclaimed. At that time he lauded the virtues of Italy's "Soldier King," an unusual tribute from a church dignitary at a time when the Vatican and fore a crimson velvet bench in front of the altar, the royal bride and groom stood while Cardinal Maffi pronounced the words that made the charming Belgian Princess an Italian consort and, in the natural course of events, the next queen of the Italian kingdom.

In accordance with the ancient custom, the Princess of the Italian house of Savoy flanked the bride and groom, holding over their heads an exquisite veil of white and gold lace. It was the same which had been used when King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was married to Princess Helena of

GOWN MASTERPIECE
Princess Marie Jose's bridal gown was a masterpiece of the couturier's art. It was fashion-though the Princess is known to be a devotee of the short skirt for cient royal tradition on this occasion, and the lace-trimmed skirt of her gown dropped to her ankles.

The Prince was dressed in mili-

members of his family, the Prince of Piedmont presented an impressive spectacle as he stood before the gorgeously decorated altar and promised to "love, honor and cherish" the Princess who will someday be a queen.

STORM HALTS REID SEARCH

ton Bay Region Creates Much Apprehension

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 8 —
One of the worst storms of the season held the Arctic region in its grip today and frustrated attempts to continue the search for Capt. T. M. (Pat) Reid, commander of the Eielson relief expedition, missing since Saturday.

ton Bay region where Reid and his two mechanics, James Hutchinson and William Hughes disappeared in a snow storm, increased apprehension.

Reports from North Cape, Siberia where Lieut. Carl Ben Eiel-son and Earl Borland disappeared
Nov. 9 said that a fierce blizzard was raging between there and Nome.

The airplane which Reid piloted was lost after it started for Nome, Alaska, to join in the search for Eielson, a plane piloted by Matt Niemenen left at the same time and was forced to land at Nulato when the snow became too dense.

HOUSE DRIES PREPARE FOR BITTER FIGHT

Try to Preserve Morale of
Forces; Wets to Fight
Shot Gun Enforcement

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 — The prohibition maelstrom which has engulfed the House to bitter debate, while the Senate is busy on the tariff, today centered around plans of the "wets" to curb "shot gun enforcement" and a counter-attack by the "drys" to preserve the morale of the federal dry forces by defending their methods of law enforcement.

The "wet" campaign to curb the use of firearms will be officially launched Thursday afternoon at a meeting of the unofficial committee for modification of the prohibition law, headed by Rep. Linthic (D), of Maryland.

Militant dries meantime planned to plunge the House into debate again with a defense of the coast guard, customs officers and prohibition enforcement officers generally against charges of "murder" when killings occur in making arrests.

Some house "drys," however, are much alarmed over the public resentment displayed in localities
where shootings have occurred.
The entire controversy has risen to a new high pitch as a result of the slaying of three men on the "Black Duck" a rum running boat,
in Long Island Sound, and the shooting of James Downey at Buffalo.

Rep. Charles L. Gifford (R) of Massachusetts, who has supported all enforcement legislation, expressed the attitude of "drys" who are worried over the killings in the enforcement of the law.

"The people along the New England coast are now brought face to face with what indiscriminate measures to enforce this law may bring about," he said. "They are staggered by the killing of young men, many of whom have been enticed into the liquor business.
These killings certainly do the prohibition cause no good, and I think they have turned many people against it."

"I fear perhaps we are going too far in our enthusiasm to enforce the law when we permit killings except on extreme provocation. I have always been a staunch advocate of the coast guard and have been anxious to back it in all its activities. But I don't applaud a massacre."

Rep. Mead (D) of New York, a
"wet," announced he will go before the "wet bloc" with a proposal that concerted action be taken "to stop this shooting without provocation."

"I can truthfully say that Buffalo and adjoining towns are thoroughly aroused and alarmed over the shooting of James Downey by coast guardsmen, when he was not threatening them but merely trying to run away," said Mead.

"He is the third man killed along the Niagara frontier in the last year and a half. Editorial writers of newspapers, both "wet" and "dry" have condemned these quick trigger men."

The "drys" are not entirely in agreement on the question. All express regret that killings are necessary. Some offer a blanket offense, and declare Congress must back enforcement officers to the limit. Others want to take measures to prevent them.

Rep. Hudson (R) of Michigan, a leading dry, had advocated the creation of a border patrol, uni-forming of the men and a six-months' course of training before they go into service, as a means of insuring that officers will shoot
only when necessary.

Many "drys" are expected to follow the lead of Rep. Reilly (R) of Maine, who told the House that Congress must back the enforcement men to the limit if they are to do good work.

RAILROAD TO PAY EXPENSES

Pennsylvania Will Pay Medical
And Burial Costs Of
Shreve Disaster

WOOSTER, O., Jan. 8 — The Pennsylvania railroad today announced that it would defray all of the expenses of the killed and injured in the tragic bus-train
crash at Shreve, last Friday night.

A Pennsylvania flyer hit a Burbank school bus and seven young boys were killed and nine other persons injured.

Because several families of the victims of the bus crash have little financial resources, C. A. Gib-bens, county school superintendent appealed to the Pennsylvania railroad for assistance.

Gibbens today received the following message:

"Although denying the responsibility for the unfortunate accident, the Pennsylvania railroad company, in a humanitarian spirit has informed the interested parties that it will assume the medical,
hospital and funeral expenses."

CHURCHES ARRANGING TO SEE CHRISTIAN UNITY PAGEANT

"The Church Triumphant" has just been announced as the title of the pageant on "Christian Unity"
to be produced in Columbus by the Ohio Council of Churches four nights during the Centennial Pentecostal Celebration, the week of
Jan. 19-26, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Depicting in a series of dramatic, colorful episodes the workings of the spirit of unity among Christians down through the centuries to the present day, the pageant promises to be one of the chief factors to attract thousands of church workers of many denominations to Columbus for the Centennial Celebration, arranged in observance of the year 1930, as the 1900th anniversary of the church.

Parties of local church people are arranging through their pastors and the following committee to see the pageant; E. S. Neuding, chairman; H. W. Plum, C. O. Leist
and W. H. Marion.

Those desiring to join these parties please get in touch with any of the above.

The opening episode, "The Day of Pentecost," presents a picture-street scene in Jerusalem, suddenly charged with spiritual power as the band of disciples emerge from their Upper Room and mingle with the crowd.

MANY GROUPS
The next scene is in the Cata-combs, as a squad of Roman soldiers raid the group of worshipers, unified by their persecution, and drag them off to martyrdom.

Imperial pomp and pageantry characterize the third episode,
"The Dedication of Constantinople," in which the futility of Con-stantine's effort to impose unity
by force is evident.

The Fifth Crusade offers the setting for the next episode, with St. Francis of Assisi as the central figure.

In an interlude separating these four historical episodes from two laid in the present day, great leaders of the past pass in review
across "the pathway of history."

In the Twentieth Century episodes, a rural picnic scene first appears, rising in dramatic intensity as a storm wrecks the village and brings the people together in mutual helpfulness, free from petty bickerings, to meet the common emergency. Next in a great summer conference of young people, colorful tableaux present some of the social challenges of today for church leadership in building understanding among nations, races and other groups.

In a brilliant finale, many denominations contribute their lights to a great outburst of the "Pentecostal Flame," which flares out to illumine all the nations of the world, marching in, picturesquely costumed, bearing their many-hued flags, as the choir and orchestra

ELEVEN CASES IGNORED IN 3 DAY SESSION

Columbus Youths Who Stole
Sheep Among Those Sent
Up—Five Secret

The Pickaway-co January grand jury, after a session of two days and part of a third, returned 17
indictments, five of them secret and ignored 11 cases in common pleas court Wednesday. John Drumm, Circleville barber, was foreman of the jury.

None of the cases before the grand jury carried particular significance.

Those against whom true bills were returned were:
Paul Nicewander, petit larceny.
George Glenn, non-support.
William Amos, alias Bill Seymour, William Gaines and Homer Jacobs, grand and petit larceny.

Morris Cutler, non-support.
Sam Brooks, third offense of the liquor laws.

Ralph Lutz, forgery.
Thomas Longberry and Homer
Queen, grand larceny.

Gilbert Brown, selling intoxicating liquor to a minor.
Rufus Bailey, forgery.

Francis Danner assault and battery.

Among the cases ignored were those against Lillian Williams and Clarence Johnson, carrying concealed weapons; Hassel Davis, who was arrested with Paul Nicewander, indicted for petit larceny; James Johnson, burglary and larceny; Fred Levering making threats; Dewey Amspaugh, removing mortgaged property; Howard Keith and Harry H. Perry, failing to stop after an accident.

Nicewander is alleged to have broken into a cash register.

Homer Jacobs and William Gaines were arrested in Chillicothe last week for stealing sheep
from John Little and John Koch, Pickaway-co. farmers. William Amos was arrested in Lancaster on the same charge several days later and was bound over by Squire E. C. Fricke.

BROOKS INDICTED

Sam Brooks, Five Points, was arrested following a boast that he could go into the court house carrying liquor and not be arrested. He was searched, however,
and was found to possess liquor.
He had been up two times before for violating liquor laws.

Francis Danner was indicted for assault and battery on a charge filed against him by E. F.
Anderson, prominent county farmer, after Danner was alleged to have tried to kill him and Mrs.
Anderson who was forced to be a patient in a Columbus hospital for several weeks after an alleged fight at the Anderson home.

The original charge against Danner was assault with intent to kill which was reduced to assault and battery.

Judge J. W. Adkins announced Wednesday that arraignment of the prisoners that are now in the jail will be held either Friday or Saturday.

The grand jury investigated the county jail and after spending slightly more than an hour there returned the following report:

"We recommend removing bricks and debris near the jail;
the erection of a fence surrounding the jail in order to prevent destruction of wire screen, protecting the barred windows; the repair of the roof and water gutters; the removal of old, unused toilets on account of sanitary conditions and the installation of doubled-decked cots in the cells
on the first and second floors."

The grand jury was composed of John Drumm, foreman; Mrs.
Lincoln Kirk, Albert Tarbill, Mrs.
C. K. Hunsicker, Turney Woolever, Charles Hay, Mrs. Arthur Dunlap, Ben Courtwright, Mrs. J.
T. Davis, Cliff Miller, Mrs. Guy
Heffner, H. O. Evelyand, E. H.
Rausenberger, Harry W. Moore
and George P. Bach.

JOY WALKS

By Leslie L. Pontius

This was indeed a beautiful Christmas; came pretty near being an old fashioned one. I said, "pretty near," it lacked the jingle of the sleigh bell, the crunch of the sharp caulks on the horses' shoes, the rumble of the bob-sled and the joyous shout of the sled riders.

Remember how we used to hitch old dobbin to the sleigh and all tucked snugly within and ride out to "grandma's" for the Christmas dinner of roasted turkey and oyster "stuffin," mashed potatoes, brown gravy, cranberry sauce and quince preserves, mince pie, cake and cookies? Remember those cookies—how they were cut in fantastic shapes to represent rabbits, horses, ducks, geese and human beings, all coated with sugar icing and then sprinkled with tiny bits of colored candies? We usually found a couple of them tucked away in our coat pocket when we arrived home.

Old dobbin and the sleigh are no more and to the older ones of us grandma has passed beyond, and we have only memories that grow fonder as the years advance.

I am always interested to know what our wild friends are doing when the snow is on, so on Christmas day I walked out to one of my favorite rendezvous, the river road, from the bridge to the mouth of Big Darby. The recent freshet had inundated this road to the depth of 8 or more feet, and when the rising waters came to a standstill the sudden cold froze a layer of ice an inch or more thick. Then the waters receded, and this ice roof broke under its own weight; the ground was strewn with slabs of ice in all conceivable positions and over all was a blanket of snow.

The walking was rather tiresome and there was many a slip and a slide, and once I became so engrossed in watching a black capped chickadee swinging on the tip of a willow branch, that I forgot where I was. Walking and stepping on a slanting cake of ice and fell with a thud; when I regained my upright position again the bird was gone. There were other birds to be seen—cardinals, titmice, song sparrows, juncos, and our Canadian friends the tree sparrows, with their songs of "peace on earth, good will to men." At one place I saw a downy woodpecker diligently tapping on the dry stem of a wild sunflower, sounding for cavities in the pith of the stem, knowing that in these cavities was the larvae

As Flames Raged at U. S. Capitol Dome

Flames shooting from the United States Capitol, shortly after seven o'clock on the night of Jan. 3rd. The blaze, starting in a manner not yet determined in a room occupied as a studio by Carl Moberly, an artist, spread unchecked to seven companies arrived to battle the blaze. Damages to the Capitol were estimated at $3,000 in addition to the loss of some valuable papers. (International Newsreel)

of some insect dormant with the cold, and snugly sleeping till the warm sun of spring would bring back the green to the trees and flowers and wake him from his long sleep. But many a cavity was broken into by this little woodpecker and many a larvae was lifted out of his snug bed by that long black tongue and greedily swallowed. Our winter birds aid materially in keeping down our insect pests by destroying the eggs and larvae that have been hidden away for the purpose of perpetuating the species. I often wonder if the true economic value of birds will ever be known.

There is a variety of trees along this road of which, to me, the most interesting is the Sycamore, relic of a dim past and now doomed and fast disappearing. The distinguishing peculiarity of the Sycamore is that it "casts its bark as well as its leaves." All trees do this more or less, it is a necessity of life that the bark should yield to the growing stem; and the outer layers becoming dead fall off in scales or plates of varying size. The Sycamore proclaims the fact more openly than any other tree of the forest. The bark of the trunk and larger limbs flakes off in great, irregular masses leaving the surface mottled, greenish white and gray and brown, sometimes the smaller limbs look as if whitewashed. In winter it can be recognized by this characteristic alone; and may be distinguished from the other trees at long distances by its white branches.

The Sycamore is threatened by a fungus which attacks and destroys the first leaves and growing shoots. The disease makes its appearance soon after the leaves have expanded, appearing in the form of small black spots which lie close to the veins. As a result, the half grown leaves turn brown, shrivel, and fall. Unless some remedy is discovered and applied, the Sycamore is doomed; because nature has provided for the second crop of leaves in case something happens to the first; but this continued producing of two crowns of leaves saps the vitality of the tree and severely handicaps it in its struggle for life and it eventually dies of premature old age.

The Sycamore is picturesque rather than beautiful. The stiff branches strike out from the trunk in a nonchalant manner, rather irregular and wander away without law or order. The branchlets likewise are arranged on a plan of hit or miss. But, in summer when the leaves are out, this scrambling, lawless arrangement, is seen to have its good points, no leaf unduly shades another and the foliage effect is light and airy.

The Sycamore at one time made up a large part of the forests of Greenland and arctic America during the cretaceous and tertiary periods and survived the ice age. It once grew abundantly in central Europe whence it has now disappeared. The last page in its book of life has been written, there is something in present conditions inimical to its development.

Each Year More Mothers Treat Colds Externally

The Dangers of "Dosing" Colds Now Avoided by Use of Modern Vaporizing Ointment

When Vicks VapoRub was introduced, mothers especially were quick to appreciate it, because it is just rubbed on and cannot upset children's delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Today, the whole trend of modern medicine is away from needless "dosing."

As more and more mothers adopted this modern external treatment, the fame of Vicks spread until today it is the standby for colds—adults as well as children's—in over 60 countries. Just rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster, and, at the same time its medicated vapors, released by the body heat, are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

Ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vicks slogan, "Made famous when Vicks reached 17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

CLUB TO FACE COURT STARS

Luminaries of National League In Pontiac Lineup—Two Prelims

The opportunity to see one of the fastest basketball teams in the National league is being offered Circleville, and Pickaway-co court fans Thursday evening when Johnny Miner, the greatest basketball player to ever play at Ohio State University, brings his crack Pontiac, Mich., five here to battle the C.A.C.

A delegation of stars that hasn't been offered on the Club floor in many moons can be seen with the Pontiac tossers. First of all comes Johnny Miner, himself. Never did a fletcher forward score a point than this boy. The forward who works opposite Miner is a man named Wampler who drops goals in the net from any angle on the court and with regularity. Then there is that Campbell boy, who tossed the leather around with Olsen's Swedes for several seasons. Campbell played here and gave a keen exhibition of the popular game that fans will welcome him again.

Duke Lynch, one of the strongest guards in the National league holds down one defensive berth, while Reese Jones, another stellar defensive man, is the fifth member of the team.

CLUB READY

The Club is set for the Pontiac team, and unless a severe case of "buck fever," something that isn't expected, comes up, the National leaguers are going to have a battle on their hands.

Two fast preliminary have been booked which should aid in drawing fans to the turnstiles.

The first one at 7 p.m. will see the Grant Flying Clouds mixing with the Kroger team of Circleville. The Krogers are newly organized and have purchased new uniforms.

The second preliminary will get under way following the Grant-Kroger game and will see the Gordon Tires tangle with the Kingston Merchants. Both teams are strong and will afford plenty of action.

Admission prices of 25c and 15c prevail.

BABE RUTH A HOLDOUT

Big Bat and Ball Man Asks $85,000 Per Year For Three Years

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Babe Ruth, the big bat and ball man from the Bronx, is an $85,000 holdout today, determined in his attitude and unyielding in his demands. You can go right out and get the insurance money, too, that he will be a holdout tomorrow; also next week and likewise next month. For obvious reasons, I won't go so far as to say next season. The Yankees and Mr. Ruth may be a trifle impetuous on occasion but neither of them is crazy.

However, Ruth is absolutely sincere in his determination to take $85,000 for three years or $3000 for none. He told me what he was going to do three weeks ago and, late yesterday afternoon, he went in there and did it. This was no sudden whim of his, this downright refusal to accept. It was a carefully conceived, well planned gesture, intended to notify the Yankees that $85,000 was his price and three years his notion of how long such a contract should endure. Ruth may be a lot of things but he's no bargainer.

Odd Rainfalls

Golden rain, yellow rain and "showers of sulphur" occur now and then. A shower of this sort sent scores of frightened peasants into the churches of Luxembourg a few years ago, as they feared that it forbade punishment for the numerous sins which doubtless they had on their consciences. These yellow rains are due to the presence in the upper air of large quantities of pollen of certain pines and fir trees.

Copyright Procedure

The copyright law is specific as to the place where the copyright notice shall appear and as to the form that the copyright notice shall take. Many court decisions have been handed down ruling that if these specific requirements are not followed, the copyright is invalid. Other decisions have established that publication without proper notice is a dedication of the material to the public.

Gargantuan Aspirant for Fistic Title

CARNERA HOOKS HIS MAN WITH HIS 14-LB. CANE. CARNERA'S GARGANTUAN PEDAL EXTREMITIES CARNERA LIFTS HIS MAN

INTRODUCING the skyscraper of the ring—Primo Carnera, alias the Genoa Giant, who measures his punches by horsepower. Fisticana's newest sensation has come to town and has more than lived up to all the fabulous stories that Tunney and other visitors to Europe have told of him. The Italian boxer, who until two years ago was a circus performer with his enormous "tootsies" wrapped in burlap, is regarded by experts as exceptionally promising material. A far better prospect, in fact, than was Jess Willard at the corresponding stage of his career. Carnera is six feet ten inches tall, weighs nearly 300 pounds, and carries a 14-pound cane to support his hefty frame. He wears size 17 shoes and encases his neck in a size 20 collar. When he was an itinerant circus performer his best meal consisted of seven pounds of bread, but now his breakfast includes such trifles as six eggs, 26 slices of toast, two quarts of milk, an enormous slice of ham, and maybe, a pint of orange juice. And after this modest repast he is ready for a limbering up at the gymnasium. It is hoped late this month to stage Carnera a first bout in this country. Just now they are paging all the great fighters to find one to challenge conclusions with the Italian's fourteen-ounce boxing gloves, which measure sixteen and one-half inches, against the average ten and one-half "mitt." Up to now there has been no great rush of giant boxers to offer themselves as a sacrifice to Primo Carnera. George Godfrey, the human ton of coal, would be a logical opponent after the Italian has had some experience of American ring methods. Carnera is having his work-out at Stillman's Gymnasium and proving that he is not just another ring freak. He displays considerable agility and is remarkably limber. He does not rest heavily on his enormous "dogs" nor does he lumber around. He knows how to use his left and carefully pulls his punches against lighter opponents. At all events, he is a life-saver just when the ring was devoid of colorful personalities and thrills.

COUNTY EYES ON ASHVILLE, NEW HOLLAND

Several Fast Games Listed In County in Friday Evening's Schedule

All the Pickaway-co. high school basketball teams will swing into action Friday evening for the first time since the Christmas vacations with Washington-twp being the only school without an intra-county contest.

One of the most important, and what promises to be one of the fastest games of the week, will be played at Ashville where the Kauber-coached men tackle the New Holland five. What a battle that should be! Both teams have been going along in fine style and although New Holland handed the Ashville lads a bitter pill in this previous meeting it is entirely possible that the "woim will join" when the two clubs tangle at Ashville.

The girls' game also promises plenty of action.

Another game which is drawing considerable interest is that between Williamsport and Muhlenberg at Muhlenberg's gym. Williamsport has been going along in great style and with a fair amount of the breaks should cop a victory. But you never can tell in this league.

Darby faces Monroe on the Monroe court; Saltcreek goes to Atlanta where two local battles will be staged; Scioto is the guest at Pickaway and Jackson defends its laurels against Walnut in the Jackson backyard.

Close scores should be the result of practically all the contests.

Color Needs Light

If the generally accepted theory of color is correct, there can be no color without reflected light. The color of an object, according to the modern theory, is produced by the reflection of all those rays of light which are not absorbed by the object. A green object is green merely because it reflects the green rays of light and absorbs all the others.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Novelist's Oversight

Harriet Beecher Stowe did not profit by the dramatization of her novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin." In her total disregard of the theater, she failed to reserve to herself the dramatic rights of the book. Consequently, it was at the call of any producer who wished to have it. Throughout the play's immensely profitable life she never got a dollar in theatrical royalties.

Run Up Score of 68-1 On Jackson—Both Boys Teams Win Practices

Showing almost unbelievable strength, the Circleville high school girls' basketball team defeated the Jackson-twp girls at the high school gym Tuesday evening by the score of 68-1 in a practice session.

With an unstoppable offense and an impregnable defense the game was very enlightening, for the girls open their regular season at Westerville Friday evening.

Circleville high school boys defeated Pickaway-twp school first stringers in another practice session by the score of 28-11 at Pickaway.

The boys' second team also won its game from Pickaway by the score of 8-4.

No More Gas In Stomach and Bowels

If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in stomach and bowels take Baalmann's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach gas and all the bad effects resulting from gas pressure.

That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach will disappear; that anxious, nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish, and you will again be able to take a deep breath without discomfort.

That drowsy, sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for entertainment. Bloating will cease. Your limbs, arms and fingers will no longer feel cold and "go to sleep" because Baalmann's Gas Tablets prevent gas from interfering with the circulation. Get the genuine in the yellow package, at any good drug store. Price $1.

JOY WALKS

By Leslie L. Pontius

This was indeed a beautiful Christmas; came pretty near being an old fashioned one. I said, "pretty near," it lacked the jingle of the sleigh bell, the crunch of the sharp caulk on the horses' shoes, the rumble of the bob-sled and the joyous shout of the sled riders.

Remember how we used to hitch old dobbin to the sleigh and all tuck snugly within and ride out to "grandma's," for the Christmas dinner of roasted turkey and oyster "stuffin," mashed potatoes, brown gravy, cranberry sauce and quince preserves, mince pie, cake and cookies? Remember those cookies—how they were cut in fantastic shapes to represent rabbits, horses, ducks, geese and human beings, all coated with sugar icing and then sprinkled with tiny bits of colored candies? We usually found a couple of them tucked away in our coat pocket when we arrived home.

Old dobbin and the sleigh are no more and to the older ones of us grandma has passed beyond, and we have only memories that grow fonder as the years advance.

I am always interested to know what our wild friends are doing when the snow is on, so on Christmas day I walked out to one of my favorite rendezvous, the river road, from the bridge to the mouth of Big Darby. The recent freshet had inundated this road to the depth of 8 or more feet, and when the rising waters came to a standstill the sudden cold froze a layer of ice an inch or more thick. Then the waters receded and this ice roof broke under its own weight; the ground was strewn with slabs of ice in all conceivable positions and over all was a blanket of snow.

The walking was rather tiresome and there was many a slip and a slide, and once I became so engrossed in watching a black capped chickadee swinging on the tip of a willow branch, that I forgot where I was walking and stepped on a slanting cake of ice and fell with a thud; when I regained my upright position again the bird was gone. There were other birds to be seen—cardinals, titmice, song sparrows, juncos, and our Canadian friends the tree sparrows, with their songs of "peace on earth, good will to men." At one place I saw a downy woodpecker diligently tapping on the dry stem of a wild sunflower, sounding for cavities in the pith of the stem, knowing that in these cavities was the larvae

Flames shooting from the United States Capitol, shortly after seven o'clock on the night of Jan. 3rd. The blaze, starting in a manner not yet determined in a room occupied as a studio by Carl Moberly, an artist, spread unchecked to an adjoining document room. While firemen fought frantically to reach the highly inaccessible spot. Fire fighters from twenty-seven companies arrived to battle the blaze. Damages to the Capitol were estimated at $3,000 in addition to the loss of some valuable papers. (International Newsreel)

of some insect dormant with the cold, and snugly sleeping till the warm sun of spring would bring back the green to the trees and flowers and wake him from his long sleep. But many a cavity was broken into by this little woodpecker and many a larvae was lifted out of his snug bed by that long black tongue and greedily swallowed. Our winter birds aid materially in keeping down our insect pests by destroying the eggs and larvae that have been hidden away for the purpose of perpetuating the species. I often wonder if the true economic value of birds will ever be known.

There is a variety of trees along this road of which, to me, the most interesting is the Sycamore, relic of a dim past and now doomed and fast disappearing. The distinguishing peculiarity of the Sycamore is that it "casts its bark as well as its leaves." All trees do this more or less, it is a necessity of life that the bark should yield to the growing stem; and the outer layers becoming dead fall off in scales or plates of varying size. The Sycamore proclaims the fact more openly than any other tree of the forest. The bark of the trunk and larger limbs flakes off in great, irregular masses leaving the surface mottled, greenish white and gray and brown, sometimes the smaller limbs look as if whitewashed. In winter it can be recognized by this characteristic alone; and may be distinguished from the other trees at long distances by its white branches.

The Sycamore is threatened by a fungus which attacks and destroys the first leaves and growing shoots. The disease makes its appearance soon after the leaves have expanded, appearing in the form of small black spots which lie close to the veins. As a result, the half grown leaves turn brown, shrivel, and fall. Unless some remedy is discovered and applied, the Sycamore is doomed; because nature has provided for the second crop of leaves in case something happens to the first; but this continued producing of two crops of leaves saps the vitality of the tree and severely handicaps it in its struggle for life and it eventually dies of premature old age.

The Sycamore is picturesque rather than beautiful. The stiff branches strike out from the trunk in a nonchalant manner, rather irregular and wander away without law or order. The branchlets likewise are arranged on a plan of hit or miss. But, in summer when the leaves are out, this scrambling, lawless arrangement, is seen to have its good points, no leaf unduly shades another and the foliage effect is light and airy.

The Sycamore at one time made up a large part of the forests of Greenland and arctic America during the cretaceous and tertiary periods and survived the ice age. It once grew abundantly in central Europe whence it has now disappeared. The last page in its book of life has been written. There is something in present conditions inimical to its development.

Top Old Plaything

There are many references to the top in classical literature. There are several words in Greek for tops; one for the whirling or peg top, another for the humming top. These words are found in the writings of Homer. It is claimed that tops were known in England as early as the Fourteenth century.

Each Year More Mothers Treat Colds Externally

The Dangers of "Dosing" Colds Now Avoided by Use of Modern Vaporizing Ointment

When Vicks VapoRub was introduced, mothers especially were quick to appreciate it, because it is just rubbed on and cannot upset children's delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Today, the whole trend of modern medicine is away from needless "dosing."

As more and more mothers adopted this modern external treatment, the fame of Vicks spread until today it is the standby for colds—adults as well as children's—in over 60 countries.

Just rubbed on throat and chest, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster; and, at the same time its medicated vapors, released by the body heat, are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

Ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vicks slogan. Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

IT is a curious fact that the best-tasting cigarette is the one in which no single taste quality is too evident. Over-mildness, for example—or over-richness—shows lack of "balance" just as plainly as harshness or bitterness.

On this basis, test Chesterfield. Aroma, smoothness, satisfying goodness, flavor, mildness, all present—but none emphasized at the expense of others. The one goal is taste—better taste, balanced taste—

NEW BUSINESS MONTH
One of the big mail order houses is adopting a thirteen months-a-year schedule, with even four-week periods, for its own purposes. This arrangement makes bookkeeping and payrolls simpler. All employees will be paid in units of 28 days. The pay-days will be evenly spaced, and the days of the weeks and days of the business month will correspond.
This means, so far as one business organization alone can manage it, the voluntary adoption of the thirteen-month year now under consideration by various countries. There are said to be other concerns in the United States doing the same thing. Business men generally are friendly to the new scheme and think it would be an improvement over the present calendar—at least for business purposes. Whether it would serve as well for social and religious purposes is another question.

CENSUS QUESTIONS
Don't lose your temper at the 1930 census taker if he seems more inquisitive than census men of the past. There are five new questions that he is required to ask of everybody.
For the first time enumerators are to ask the value of the home, if owned, or the monthly rental, if rented. They are to ask, also, if there is a radio set within. Age at the time of the first marriage, whether actually employed, and whether a veteran of the armed forces of the United States and during what war, are other matters on which the Department of Commerce seeks enlightenment concerning each adult citizen and which is has decreed shall be learned through the census.
Gainful workers are to be carefully classified this time, and a special schedule for unemployment will permit separation of those not working into several classes.
A great deal of useful information comes out of the census. Enumeration of the nation's population is only one item. So answer the census taker politely; one of these days you may want some of the facts he is helping to assemble.

There seem to be two capitals to this country, and Wall Street thinks the real capital is where the capital is.

There are still too many kind farmers whose idea of relieving farmers is to make it easier for them to sign mortgages.

Some cities, after adopting the city manager plan and putting a politician in as city manager, say it isn't any improvement over the old system.

A RUNNING ARGUMENT

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.
BOTH Ned Grier and Dick Grant, college mates, are in love with young and pretty, Enid Monroe. When Dick is sent to Shanghai by the oil company for which both men work, Ned wins Enid by telling her that Dick is living with an Eurasian woman in Shanghai. Enid consents in wounded pride to marry Ned. Dick returns to America, expecting to propose to Enid. He learns she is to be married to Ned very soon and that he is expected to act as best man. He goes to New York and does the honors as best friend of both bride and groom.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)
CHAPTER XIV.
HE found her lying on the sofa in her sitting-room, exhausted after her wedding.
Dick bent low to kiss the woman he loved next to his mother, and as he did so she tightened her arms around his neck and he felt a moisture on his cheeks as she straightened. He almost fell on his knees beside her—if he could only have given way and told her now his heart was breaking!
"Well," she said, "it was a beautiful wedding. How lovely Enid looked. What calmness and dignity the dear child has for her twenty years. I am very fortunate to have such a daughter, Dick."

"You are, Mrs. Grier. Enid is the finest girl I ever knew." He stopped short.
"Yes," she continued. "It's a wonderful thing to have a girl whom you have known since she was a child come into the family. You are absolutely certain how she will turn out. Ned's father and I are more than delighted with the match, even if it will be pretty lonely for us now."
"But Ned has arranged a transfer to the New York office and he is bound to be located here for a while," Dick said, trying to find comfort for another when he could find none for himself. "It isn't as if you were losing him entirely."
"Oh, no, but you know the old rhyme:

'A daughter's a daughter all her life.
But a son's a son till he takes a wife,

And that is the way it should be. I'm sure they will be very happy. I think Ned has always been in love with Enid."

How Dick wanted to confess, "So have I, perhaps more!"
They were silent for a while, Mrs. Grier looking wistfully out of the window.

"You'd better bring your bags up here, Dick, and move into Ned's room. We should like so much to have you with us while you're in New York."

"That's very kind of you, Mrs. Grier, and I appreciate it, but I'm leaving tonight for the West."

"Oh, you won't be back when they return?"
"Sorry, I'm ordered to the office in San Francisco."

"Thank God he wouldn't be there when the pair came back from their honeymoon!"
"Oh, that will be nice for your mother," went on his best friend's mother. "But I suppose you'll be the next to go."

"Go where?" Dick asked vaguely.
"Why get married, you silly boy," she laughed.

Get married—married to any one but Enid—great God! Dick knew that Mrs. Grier was entirely unconscious of the pain she was causing him, but he couldn't stand much more. Without pursuing the conversation, he arose abruptly and kissed her good-bye.

"No, don't get up, Mrs. Grier. I've got to run. Say good-bye to Mr. Grier for me and give my love to Ned and Enid when they come back."

He was off down the stairs—those same stairs he and Ned had run down so often, the stairs on which they had eyed each other the first night they had worn their tuxedos, not quite sure that their ties were tied right, and then called to take Enid and a friend to a dance.

It would be better to leave New York. Everything reminded him of her.

He'd go up to the park and try to walk off some of his depression. There was St. Thomas's where they were married yesterday—yesterday.

The Plaza—he could remember her in a green velvet suit with fur up around her neck and a perky little turban on her head. It was the first time her mother had ever allowed her to go anywhere to dance in the afternoon, and then it was only because she was going with Ned and himself.

Mrs. Edward Fairchild Grier she was now. She was Grier's. He swung into the park at Sherman's statue and as he passed the golden horseman, he read: "War Is Hell."

"Love Is Hell," he thought. There was the lake. He could see them skating on it—Enid in the middle and Ned on one side and himself on the other, her little hand clutching his tightly. He knew the very place on his arm where her head came. And now her head was resting on Ned's—

God, this was awful. This was not loyal to old Ned—he shouldn't think such black thoughts. Why, he was coveting his neighbor's wife, and his neighbor was his best-beloved friend; closer than a twin brother might have been. God, what a cad!

He'd pull out of this! His eyes grew hard and stern.

A short time before the train was due to depart he went back to the hotel, threw his things into his bags and went to the Grand Central.

Even there he could see her as she and Dave, her brother, and Ned had come to see him off so often to his Western home.

Soon after the train pulled out, he went into the dining-car and ordered dinner. He couldn't seem to swallow for the lump in his throat.

He hurriedly paid the check and went back to his car. They were getting on up the Hudson now. Old Storm King mountain would be just across there. He was glad it was dark so that he couldn't look across the river and see the school up on the hill where he had first met her.

"Porter, please make up my berth," Dick said quickly, in a husky voice.

He wanted to get away, away from everybody; he wanted to be alone where he wouldn't have to wear a mask.

As soon as his berth was made up, he undressed quickly and went to bed. Oh, Enid—Enid.

He curled up like a little boy and covered his face with his arm. His great shoulders shook. He cried for the first time since his mother had left him at the military academy when he was twelve years old.

When he reached Chicago, Dick didn't bother to telephone his friends as he usually did; he did not even go to a hotel to wait for his train to San Francisco. He simply went from one station to another and sat there in the waiting-room until his train was made up.

It didn't matter where he was. He wanted to get home. Work. Work. That was the thing. He had a great chance now. On account of his connections on the West Coast, the company had given him a good post.

But what difference did it make? What was the incentive? What joy can there be in success for a man if he can't take his laurel wreath and lay it on the knees of his beloved?

Would Enid care now that she was Ned's wife who he got on? And should he want her to care? Was that right?

Of course, there were his mother and father waiting and expecting him to make them proud. He'd try. But how different it would be if he were striving for Enid, too.

Every boyhood ambition of Dick's dimmed as he traveled across the continent. But when he reached his own country and stood on the platform of the observation car and saw the great mountains of California with their tall pines, something resurrected within him. He held his head higher. He drank in the life-giving air of the high Sierras, smiled and said to himself as he so often had to Ned: "Richard is himself again."

And when Mr. and Mrs. Grant met their boy at the Oakland station, they thought they had never seen him look so handsome and strong.

"He's all wrapped up in this new position in the company," said his father that evening after Dick had gone to bed. "He'll make his way."

"He's never disappointed us yet, Father," Mrs. Grant said and waited a moment. "And I don't believe he ever will."

"Do you notice the look of determination in his face?" asked his father. "It would take a lot to beat a man with a jaw like his."

"Yes, dear," said his mother quietly. "There's a different expression in Dick's face. He looks as if he had conquered something."

Upstairs in his room, Dick was saying the same thing to himself. "I can't fall down on this. I can't disappoint them, and, by God, I won't! And besides I'd be disappointed if I didn't."

Of course, it had all been very exciting for Enid... the wedding and all the presents and that lovely suite at the Ritz the first night they were married. And all those beautiful clothes and being called Mrs. Grier; the new initials on the luggage and the tiny diamond circlet of a wedding-ring.

And now it was delightful here in Jim Easton's camp up on Big Wolf Lake.

"We couldn't have found a better place for our honeymoon, darling," Ned said one afternoon as he lay sprawled in a canoe facing his beautiful young wife.

"It's perfect," said Enid. "But I only want you, dearest."

"Oh, Enid, I'm so happy. Are you, dearest?"

"Yes, Ned," she answered.

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

"Wallow In Water"

Dr. Copeland's Health Message Today

A Thoroughly Clean Skin Means a Good Complexion and Good Looks, Says Authority, So Don't Join the Water "Dabbers."

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

YOUR good looks depend to a large extent upon the appearance and condition of your skin. A perfect complexion is of more importance than perfect features. Everyone admires a beautiful skin.

DR. COPELAND

Absolute cleanliness of the skin is the first consideration. Your complexion cannot be kept clean by merely dabbing a little water upon it. Plenty of soap of a fine quality is essential in order to cleanse the pores of the skin and to keep it in good condition. An abundance of water is required to wash away the dirt and germs which accumulate in the day's work.

A general bath should be taken at least twice a week. But in these days, most people could not think of letting a day pass without a bath. A brisk rub will stimulate the circulation of the blood, and a bad complexion will show amazing improvement with outside cleanliness.

That is not all, for cleanliness within is also essential. You cannot have a beautiful complexion if your system is clogged with waste materials from undigested food, or poisoned by the evil effects of constipation. You should drink plenty of water, not too much at mealtime, but before or after eating. This will help to cleanse the system.

There are germs in the air and germs in the dirt with which we are in constant contact. Of course it is the skin that suffers first. The skin is one of the most important organs of elimination of the body. The dead cells are constantly cast off, carrying with them the waste substances of the body as well as the dirt and germ accumulation. Many poisons of the system are thrown off through the skin. You can see why the skin should be kept in good condition. Cleanliness is the great essential to its proper action.

Physical exercise of a vigorous nature stimulates very greatly all the functions and organs of the body. The heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, bowels, the mysterious "ductless" glands, and the skin all are stimulated by energetic exercise. You have often noticed how much better you skin looks after a vigorous walk out in the bracing air, or after a strenuous game in the open. The air is a tonic for the skin and nobody is going to look or feel well who does not take his daily exercise. If you are the fortunate owner of a car, do not let its possession cause you to forget the normal uses of your feet.

A good complexion means that you must avoid excessive sweets, fats and starches. Eat plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. It is good to drink milk with your meals, if you like it.

Rest and sleep are great restorers.

In a restless age we disregard the warnings of our bodies either to abstain from taking too much of the wrong food, or for lack of rest and sleep. Abundant sleep has almost instant good effect on the skin.

Advancing age will bring wrinkles. Well, many a beautiful face is made more beautiful by the lines etched by time. Character is shown by these signs. But everyone wants to look as young as he feels.

Cleanliness is the first requisite to a good skin, and good health depends upon this one thing to a great extent. It works both ways for a good skin depends on good health.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Leatrice Joy, stage, vaudeville and screen actress, here at the Cliftona theatre Wednesday and Thursday in her latest "talkie," a "First National production of a play 'A Most Immoral Lady,' is prodrom.

She is enthusiastically "for" the modern girl, the modern open-toe clothing, the modernistic furniture, and she doesn't care who knows it.

However, she has some very good and wholesome reasons why she is "for" them, and why she believes that they will contribute to the health and happiness of the human race.

"A film such as 'A Most Immoral Lady' suggests the whole modern trend," Miss Joy points out. "I was telling Walter Pidgeon, who plays opposite me in the picture, that only a few years ago, I as the heroine in the title role, would have been looked upon as a 'vamp' and a villainess, whereas now, we are certain, the character I portray will find sympathy, just as, in the plot, she is allowed to find happiness."

The picture has ultra-modern settings as well as plot, Miss Joy might have added; even the furniture of the smart New York, Paris and Palm Beach sequences is "modern."

AT THE GRAND

Al Jolson, truthfully credited, with having brought the infant Vitaphone into full growth with "The Jazz Singer" and "The Singing Fool," the two pictures that gave such tremendous impetus to talking pictures, is now starring in his third all-singing, all-dialogue feature for Warner Brothers, to be seen at the Grand theatre Sunday next.

"Say It With Songs," the story of a father's sacrifice, was written by Darryl Zanuck and Harvey H. Gates and the talking scenario was done by Joseph Jackson. Lloyd Bacon directed and the cast includes, in addition to tiny Davey Lee, Marian Nixon, Kenneth Thompson, Holmes Herbert and Fred Kohler.

Many brilliant new songs and several of the old favorites are sung by Jolson in the whirlwind course of "Say It With Songs."

NEW BUSINESS MONTH

One of the big mail order houses is adopting a thirteen months-a-year schedule, with even four-week periods, for its own purposes. This arrangement makes bookkeeping and payrolls simpler. All employees will be paid in units of 28 days. The pay-days will be evenly spaced, and the days of the weeks and days of the business month will correspond.

This means, so far as one business organization alone can manage it, the voluntary adoption of the thirteen-month year now under consideration by various countries. There are said to be other concerns in the United States doing the same thing. Business men generally are friendly to the new scheme and think it would be an improvement over the present calendar—at least for business purposes. Whether it would serve as well for social and religious purposes is another question.

CENSUS QUESTIONS

Don't lose your temper at the 1930 census taker if he seems more inquisitive than census men of the past. There are five new questions that he is required to ask of everybody.

For the first time enumerators are to ask the value of the home, if owned, or the monthly rental, if rented. They are to ask, also, if there is a radio set within. Age at the time of the first marriage, whether actually employed, and whether a veteran of the armed forces of the United States and during what war, are other matters on which the Department of Commerce seeks enlightenment concerning each adult citizen and which is has decreed shall be learned through the census.

Gainful workers are to be carefully classified this time, and a special schedule for unemployment will permit separation of those not working into several classes.

A great deal of useful information comes out of the census. Enumeration of the nation's population is only one item. So answer the census taker politely; one of these days you may want some of the facts he is helping to assemble.

There seem to be two capitals to this country, and Wall Street thinks the real capital is where the capital is.

There are still too many kind friends whose idea of relieving farmers is to make it easier for them to sign mortgages.

Some cities, after adopting the city manager plan and putting a politician in as city manager, say it isn't any improvement over the old system.

A RUNNING ARGUMENT

"STORM-TOSSED"

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.

BOTH Ned Grier and Dick Grant, college mates, are in love with young and pretty, Enid Monroe. When Dick is sent to Shanghai by the oil company for which both men work, Ned wins Enid by telling her that Dick is living with an Eurasian woman in Shanghai. Enid consents in wounded pride to marry Ned. Dick returns to America, expecting to propose to Enid. He learns she is to be married to Ned very soon and that he is expected to act as best man. He goes to New York and does the honors as best friend of both bride and groom.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER XIV.
HE was lying on the sofa in her sitting-room, exhausted after her wedding.

Dick bent low to kiss the woman he loved next to his mother, and as he did so she tightened her arms around his neck, and he felt a moisture on his cheeks as she straightened. He almost fell on his knees beside her—if he could only have given way and told her now his heart was breaking!

"Well," she said, "it was a beautiful wedding. How lovely Enid looked. What calmness and dignity the dear child has for her twenty years. I am very fortunate to have such a daughter, Dick."

"You are, Mrs. Grier. Enid is the finest girl I ever knew." He stopped short.

"Yes," she continued. "It's a wonderful thing to have a girl whom you have known since she was a child come into the family. You are absolutely certain how she will turn out. Ned's father and I are more than delighted with the match, even if it will be pretty lonely for us now."

"But Ned has arranged a transfer to the New York office and he is bound to be located here for a while," Dick said, trying to find comfort for another when he could find none for himself. "It isn't as if you were losing him entirely."

"Oh, no, but you know the old rhyme: 'A daughter's a daughter all her life. But a son's a son till he takes a wife.'"

And that is the way it should be, I'm sure they will be very happy. I think Ned has always been in love with Enid."

"Sorry, I'm ordered to the office in San Francisco."

Thank God, he wouldn't be there when the fair came back from their honeymoon!

"Oh, that will be nice for your mother," went on his best friend's mother. "But I suppose you'll be the next to go."

"Go where?" Dick asked vaguely.

"Why get married, you silly boy!" she laughed, and moved into Ned's room.

Get married—married to anyone but Enid—Great God!

Dick knew that Mrs. Grier was entirely unconscious of the pain she was causing him, but he couldn't stand much more. Without pursuing the conversation, he arose abruptly and kissed her good-bye.

The skin is one of the most important organs of elimination of the body. The dead cells are constantly cast off, carrying with them the waste substances of the body as well as the dirt and germ accumulation. Many poisons of the system are thrown off through the skin. You can see why the skin should be kept in good condition. Cleanliness is the great essential to its proper action.

Physical exercise of a vigorous nature stimulates very greatly all the functions and organs of the body. The heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, bowels, the mysterious "glands," and the skin all are stimulated by energetic exercise.

You have often noticed how much better your skin looks after a vigorous walk out in the bracing air, or after a strenuous game in the open. The air is a tonic for the skin and nobody is going to look or feel well who does not take his daily exercise. If you are the fortunate owner of a car, do not let its possession cause you to forget the normal uses of your feet.

A good complexion means that you must avoid excessive sweets, fats and starches. Eat plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. It is good to drink milk with your meals if you like it.

Rest and sleep are great restorers.

THE WILBUR COON PLAYERS

LOVE and ROMANCE

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Leatrice Joy, stage, vaudeville and screen actress, here at the Cliftona theatre Wednesday and Thursday in her latest "talkie," a "First National production of a play 'A Most Immoral Lady,' is prominent."

She is enthusiastically "for" the modern girl, the modern open-toe, the modernistic furniture, and she doesn't care who knows it.

However, she has some very good and wholesome reasons why she is "for" them, and why she believes that they will contribute to the health and happiness of the human race.

"A film such as 'A Most Immoral Lady' suggests the whole modern trend," Miss Joy points out. "I was telling Walter Pidgeon, who plays opposite me in the picture, that only a few years ago, I as the heroine in the title role, would have been looked upon as a 'vamp' and a villainess, whereas now, we are certain, the character I portray will find sympathy, just as, in the plot, she is allowed to find happiness."

The picture has ultra-modern settings as well as plot, Miss Joy might have added; even the furniture of the smart New York, Paris and Palm Beach sequences is "modern."

AT THE GRAND

Al Jolson, truthfully credited, with having brought the infant Vitaphone into full growth with "The Jazz Singer" and "The Singing Fool," the two pictures that gave such tremendous impetus to talking pictures, is now starring in his third all-singing, all-dialogue feature for Warner Brothers, to be seen at the Grand theatre Sunday next.

"Say It With Songs," the story of a father's sacrifice, was written by Darryl Zanuck and Harvey H. Gates and the talking scenario was done by Joseph Jackson, Lloyd Bacon directed and the cast includes, in addition to tiny Davey Lee, Marian Nixon, Kenneth Thompson, Holmes Herbert and Fred Kohler.

Many brilliant new songs and several of the old favorites are sung by Jolson in the whirlwind course of "Say It With Songs."

Individual

As we cannot gain strength by wallowing the physical exercise of others, or mental power by their study neither can we gain spiritual strength by admiring their faith and good works. We determine our own strength or weakness by what we do with the powers that have been given us.—Exchange.

Cabbage Not Modern

Early civilization used the cabbage. Egyptians considered it of great importance. Hippocrates ascribed medical properties to it. Cato

In a restless age we disregard the warnings of our bodies either to abstain from taking too much of the wrong food, or for lack of rest and sleep. Abundant sleep has almost instant good effect on the skin.

Advancing age will bring wrinkles. Well, many a beautiful face is made more beautiful by the lines chiseled by time. Character is shown by these signs. But everyone wants to look as young as he feels.

Cleanliness is the first requisite to a good skin, and good health depends upon this one thing to a great extent. It works both ways for a good skin depends on good health.

Gloves' Many Purposes

From earliest times the glove has been a symbol of power, divinity and love. Many chivalrous deeds were performed in its name. A knight often had occasion to defend his lady's glove with his life. Throwing a glove at the feet of a person challenged him to pick it up and fight a duel. Gloves served a lowly purpose, too, at a time when knives and forks were unknown and people ate with their fingers.

Mrs. Minneola Spangler presented a past chief's pin to the outgoing president, Mrs. Mary Neuding. Also Miss Laura Mader in a speech of deep feeling on behalf of the organization gave to Mrs. Neuding a handsome service tray as a token of the respect and affection with which the tent has always held the outgoing president.

Mrs. Neuding received the gift, with a few words of heart-felt gratitude, the expression of the pleasure and surprise she felt in the bestowal of the present. The tray was of sterling silver and glass, and edged with polychrome.

The Daughters of the Union Veterans of the Catherine Wolfley Hedges Tent, will meet on Wednesday, Jan. 15, for the regular sewing club at the home of Mrs. E. L. Tolbert on Walnut-st. The members are invited for two o'clock.

SOCIETY MEETING HELD IN KINGSTON

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church in Kingston held a delightful and profitable meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jessie Shannon.

The meeting was called to order at 2:30 o'clock by the president, Mrs. F. I. Rittenour, and devotions were in charge of Mrs. Julia Baldoser who read and discussed the last chapter of Romans, the topic of which was "The Human Touch."

After all singing "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," Mrs. Baldoser closed the devotions with prayer. During the business session the secretary, Mrs. Flora Shoemaker, read the minutes of the November meeting and the treasurer, Mrs. George L. Borders reported that the Christmas offering amounted to $22.

Miss Carrie Umsted in a charming and interesting manner reviewed the 4th chapter of the study book, "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem," and Mrs. F. I. Rittenour and Mrs. Alice Brundage told in dialogue style "The Woman's Part Played in the spread of the Gospel in Europe."

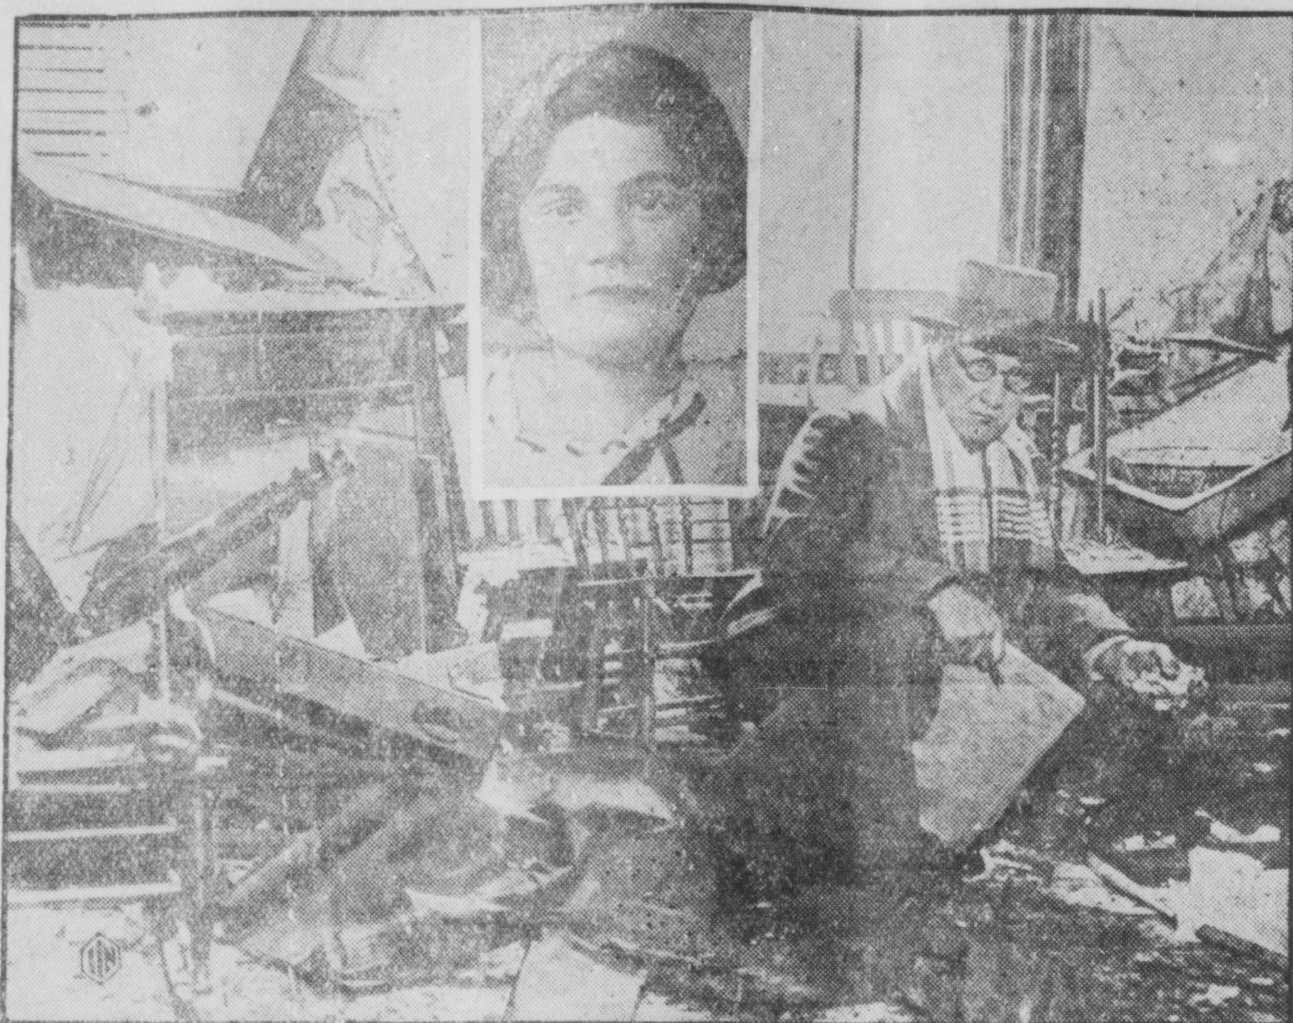

The mystery box questions were in charge of Mrs. Jennie Holden and Mrs. Moler Pugh, and were very interesting. Rev. Floyd S. Webb was a guest and made a few pleasing remarks. The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Webb followed by the missionary benediction.

SHOWER FOR MRS. RAY LIST

Mrs. W. H. List and Mrs. Erma List, entertained Monday night with a miscellaneous shower honoring the former's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ray List, which has never formally been announced, and which took place in Covington, Ky., with the Rev. Father Zeimer officiating.

Mrs. List was formerly Miss Blanche Lucile Heffner, daughter

Bomb in Xmas Gift Kills Bride

Shattered home of John Hall, Seat Pleasant, Md., showing deadly havoc wrought by a "Christmas package" left at a neighbor's home for Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, 18-year-old daughter of the Halls and a bride of five weeks. As the "gift" was opened in the kitchen of the Hall home, it exploded, killing Mrs. Brady and seriously injuring Mrs. Hall and four younger children, two of whom, it is feared, may not live. Neither police nor friends are able to cite a single enemy of the Hall family who might be guilty of the fiendish crime, the Halls having been friendly with all their neighbors. (Inset) Mrs. Brady.

Energy Thrown Off by Sun

The sun daily supplies to the earth energy equivalent to the burning of 507,000,000,000 tons of coal, according to Dr. Charles G. Abbot of the Smithsonian institution. Natural scientists have been attempting for years to utilize this solar energy.

SHERIFF'S SALE

Aaron Polling, Saltcreek-twp, purchased 160 acres of land at sheriff's sale in Saltcreek-twp Monday for the sum of $10,240. The land was sold through the suit of Edwin Fetherolf against Daniel Fetherolf and others.

A house and lot in Washington known as the Laura Gamble homestead, was sold at sheriff's sale Monday to the Scioto Building and Loan Co., following their suit against George Strawser and others.

Carl Porter conducted both sales.

Avoid Evil Association

Barriers of the unknown and of them that are without, avoid. But if you have occasion to take part in them, let not your attention be relaxed for a moment, lest you slip after all into evil ways. For you may rest assured that he a man ever so pure himself, he cannot escape defilement if his associates are impure.—Epictetus.

Glove's Many Purposes

From earliest times the glove has been a symbol of power, divinity and love. Many chivalrous deeds were performed in its name. A knight often had occasion to defend his lady's glove with his life. Throwing a glove at the feet of a person challenged him to pick it up and fight a duel. Gloves served a lowly purpose, too, at a time when knives and forks were unknown and people ate with their fingers.
